

I think that, even if electronic interference is a non-issue, it would still be wise to restrict cell-phone use on airplanes for passenger comfort. However, I would question whether such a law would fall in the domain of the FCC, or whether it is a matter to be decided by each airline.